There are 2.2 million working age adults in Florida who have started college but haven’t finished.

The Adult Learner

The majority of Complete Florida students are working adults, many with families, so their time and their resources are precious.

40% of all U.S. college students are adults returning to college.

Navigating the right path

“The hardest adjustment of working, taking care of family and attending school at the same time was time management. The flexibility of online classes offered me the chance to complete my bachelor's degree.”

-- Kelly
“Since I am a bit further along in life, incurring a massive student debt is not appealing to me. Therefore, any funds that I can receive to offset any potential need for loans is much appreciated. I can complete my education with peace of mind, not having to worry about a huge bill at the end of my self-improvement journey.”

-- Shaneka
"When I did my own research, I was having trouble finding a university that would accept my business classes because the credits were more than 10 years old. I would never have known anything about an Interdisciplinary Studies degree if my coach hadn't pointed me in that direction."

-- James
What people are saying.

Success stories. People have many reasons for wanting to finish their degree - to get a better job, be a good example for their kids or to just check it off their bucket list.

“I was ready for a change but I didn’t know where to start. Now I have a career plan and I am headed back to college to finish my degree.”

Lauren

“I felt like life was passing me by. But now I know what I want to do and Complete Florida is helping me do it.”
